College Honors students share research

(Press Release 03-31-10)

Eastern Oklahoma State College Honors students shared their research on the landmark sociological Robbers Cave Experiment of 1954 at a reception at the campus White House, recently. Eastern faculty, administrators, the Honors Council, Eastern Regents, the Foundation Board of Directors and retired Eastern instructors were invited guests.

According to Honors Program Director Ruth Askew Brelsford, the program at Eastern recognizes and encourages academic excellence. "Students entering the Honors program are required to have the highest ACT scores of any of the academic scholarships on campus," she said. Honors students receive a full tuition waiver and are eligible for Honors programs in regional and state universities. Current or future students interested in Honors at Eastern should contact Brelsford by phone at 918-465-1762 or by email at rbrelsford@eosc.edu.
